FROM IDAHO

From the Idaho Statesman of the 23d ult., we take the following:

RECAPTURE OF THE TERRITORIAL PRISONERS—DUNN KILLED.

We are pleased to state that all the prisoners but one who escaped from the Boise county jail a few weeks ago, have been recaptured and he will probably be taken within the next twenty four hours. It appears that about ten days ago they came over from Dry creek to the Boise river and made a raft and crossed the river about four miles below Boise City. Their raft came to pieces, by which means they lost their guns and got their blankets wet. They then went down the Boise to the mouth supposing that the Boise Ferry was above the mouth of the Boise river. Disappointed in not being able to cross the Snake, they came up the Boise a few miles and separated after cooking and dividing what provision they had. They were encamped in an old deserted log cabin. Bowley and Kurtz staid there over night and Dunn and Dial left. Next day a man came across the Boise with a skiff, professedly looking out for Indians, and decoyed them to cross the river, whereupon a party of citizens captured them. Wood Gunning sent up to Boise Deputy Rowe from Idaho City, went down and brought Bowley up and lodged him in jail. Kurtz was brought up Sunday by Constable Wyatt. The other two, Dunn and Dial, stole some saddles and a horse from Charles Madden and took for the Owyhee Ferry. Finding a party of his neighbors Madden fell west and overtook them about seven miles beyond Fruit's ferry, near the spot where the Indians attacked the stage recently. They were ordered by the party to surrender, but Dunn drew his pistol from his belt, when one of the men shot him with a rifle. He bled only about five minutes, and was buried on the spot. Dial got away, but Sheriff's Duvall and Crutcher are on his track so close that they are almost sure to take him. Sheriff Crutcher and his deputy Rowe have used diligence in the pursuit of the prisoners and it is gratifying to see them successful if for no other reason than the moral effect of making it difficult for fugitives from justice to escape.

MONEY COMING.

We are credibly informed that there are five thousand head of sheep now on the way from Honey Lake to this and adjoining markets. They are coming over the Chico route. These, with those already here, will make a full supply of mutton for the present season. We understand that seven three thousand changed hands last week at four dollars per head.

THE ELKHORN.

We were shown a letter yesterday from Pioneer, which stated that the Elkhorn still commenced crushing on the 12th inst a lot of 700 tons of ore which it is believed will yield from $40 to $60 per ton. A rich clean up! is therefore expected. Work in the mine is being vigorously prosecuted. The lower tunnel is now 70 feet, where a rich body of ore has been struck. They are confident of striking the main lead soon. We are promised the results of the present "run" in the course of a week or ten days.

An Impossible Analogy

An Eastern journal holds the following remarks on the effort now so persistently made by a party in the North to make Washington and Jeff Davis stand on the same level as rebels:

The World devotes its leading article to a vehement assault upon the reputation of Washington. It denounces the "laudation" which he has received from men of all classes and of all nations, as extravagant and absurd, and proceeds to deny that he was entitled to be considered great, in any sense of the word. That he was intellectually great no one, it says, ever pretended. That he was morally great is disproved by the fact that he was all his life a slaveholder, which he acknowledged to be the highest of crimes by emancipating his slaves after his death, as he had no children to inherit them. That he was, moreover, an actual criminal—stained with the blackest moral guilt—is shown by the fact that he was a rebel; that he made war upon the Government he had sworn to uphold and defend, and that neither the motive nor the success of his rebellion in the least modify the infamy to which, by the standard of the present age, he must be consigned."

Of course this is simply a back-handed attempt to defend the recent rebellion of the Southern States—by placing it on a level, in all moral respects, with the Revolution which gave us our independence. Not liking to venture upon a direct and positive vindication of the cause of Jefferson Davis, the World makes an indirect but not less effective defence of it, by bringing the cause of Washington to its level. The effort is not at all likely to mislead the public judgment. The analogies between the two rebellions are not striking enough to confound either their motives or their merits in the public mind. In both cases the rebellious section sought independence—but in the one case they sought it as a means of establishing freedom, in the other as a means of perpetuating slavery. Regarded from a moral point of view, this single distinction establishes the broadest possible line between the two events.

But the strongest point against the Southern rebellion always seemed to us to lie in the fact that it was a rebellion against the Government in which the rebels already had their full share. The people may always justly rebel against oppression, practiced by rulers whom they cannot reach in any other way, and from which there is no other mode of escape. But rebellion against our Government can never be anything else than a rebellion of the minority against the majority of the people themselves. Our laws are made, and our rulers are elected, by the people. If they are unjust or oppressive the people can always change or repeal them. A new Congress may be elected every two years, and the Executive may also be changed every four years, if any emergency demands it. If laws are made which the people disapprove, they have the remedy in their own hands. There is no necessity for revolution or an armed rebellion; and in the absence of such necessity revolution is always a crime. If no remedy had been provided by our form of government—if there was no legitimate and peaceful way of remedying abuses either in making laws or enforcing them—if there was no other way of escaping oppression and injustice practiced upon the people, but by rebellion and revolution—then revolution would be justifiable. And this is precisely the state of facts which justified WASHINGTON'S rebellion against the British Government. But this cannot be the case in this country. Any evil which is ever justly sought by revolution may be always sought here by direct appeal to the will of the people. And if it is one which the people desire, they always have the means of attaining it.

It may be said that a minority only of the people may desire reform, and that they can only reach it against the will of the majority, by resistance. In that case they have no right to seek it. The will of the majority must be assumed to be the will of the people, and a rebellion of a minority can never be a rebellion of the people, or in the interest of the people. It is always against the people, and most thus always be a crime.

This is a distinction which must always obtain between rebellion and a Republican Government, and a rebellion against any other form of Government. In the latter case it may be in the interest of the people and in conformity with their will, in the former it must always be against their interest and their just authority. Judged by this standard the World's attempted vindication of the rebellion must fail, for the analogy fails on which alone its rests.

HORRIBLE.—In Philadelphia lately Kate Gamble, sixteen years of age, left her residence in Ninth street on an errand. A little way from the house she was accosted by a man, who suddenly seized her by both hands. She was terrified at the demonstration, and struggled desperately. "Don't you know me?" asked the man. "No, no!" was her piteous reply. The next instant the man drew from his pocket a large phial, the contents of which were caustic potash. This he threw into the face of the child and then took to his heels. At first the girl supposed the man to have been playing with her, and wiping off what she supposed to be water, passed on her way. In a few minutes the caustic penetrated the outlids, and began its course into the flesh. Since then the sight of her left eye has been completely destroyed, and great scams have been eaten into her cheeks. It is believed the girl was mistaken for some other person.

AMERICANS IN PARIS.—The Paris correspondent of the New York Times says:

"Americans are beginning to arrive in town in order to house themselves for the Exhibition, and the Saturday receptions of Gen Dix's look like a jam at the White House, only that here the ladies are in full toilet, and there is music and attempt at dancing. Soirees, dinners and other gayeties are quite common to American society, and the man who is just now the most dined out is Hon. E. B. Washburne, of Illinois, whose health is improving. The leading Bonapartists have scattered out a good deal lately. Mr. Toombs, after sending his wife to the United States, has gone back to Cuba. Gen Breckinridge left lately for England. Senator Gwin and son have gone to the United States, with a view, I believe, to resume planting in the South. Mr Slidell and George Sanders are the only Secessionists of note now here."

[DISPATCHES TO THE OREGONIAN.]

DATES TO APRIL 29.

Washington News.

WASHINGTON April 29.—In the Supreme Court Judge Wilson delivered his opinion in the case of Mimell vs John Kirkpatrick affirming the judgment of the District Court of California with costs.

The President will probably leave for Raleigh on the 12th of May.

The Supreme Court decided to-day that commanding officers during the war had no power to issue trading permits nor do of their departments.

A Treasury circular has been issued, stating that hereafter all bonds, notes and coupons payable to the bearer, and treasury notes in blank will be paid to the party presenting them. Bills has been issued in consequence of trouble arising from notices which are constantly received of thefts of such bonds, etc., and the Government will no longer protect owners who may lose such through their own fault or misconduct.

Mounted customs detectives will be established on the Texas frontier to prevent smuggling from Mexico.

NEW YORK, April 29.—Washington special dispatches say the leading Northern Republicans are telegraphing the repudiation of Thaddeus Stevens's confiscation doctrines.

NEW YORK, April 30.—The Tribune's special says it is understood that Blanchett's opinion, asked for by Grant, upon the disfranchisement under the reconstruction act, will be completed to-day and read in the cabinet. There will be an adverse decision upon General Sheridan's excluding from registration a large number of municipal officers and untruallized citizens who failed to show certificates of naturalization.

The Post Master General has determined to take the responsibility of appointing special agents at post offices vacant by the failure of the Senate to confirm nominations.

It is asserted on the high authority that the Government has offered release to Jeff Davis on his own parole, but he positively declines freedom unless it is upon conditional.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Twenty miles of the Pacific Railroad have been completed in Kansas, and the Government has issued bonds therefor.

The returns of the general land office show that a portion of the base line of Utah and Salt rivers has been surveyed. The initial point surveying the confluence of the Gila and Salt rivers at a monument established by the Mexican boundary commission. The farther survey is interrupted by Indian hostilities. The surveyors having left. Now that Arizona is made part of the California surveying district further surveys will be conducted by the California surveyor general.

NEW YORK, April 30.—A special from Washington says it is thought the Colorado river will be thoroughly examined this summer by the war department.

It is state department professes not to know anything about the reported as payment to Kossuth.

WASHINGTON, April 30.—Sewell has arrived here.

The Japanese will be presented to the Senate to-morrow.

A circular of the Revenue Commissioners to all banking associations, says they must pay ten per cent tax on all notes of cities, towns or municipal corporations, after the 1st of May.

The decision in the De Haro cattle in San Francisco, will be declared next week. It is believed the decision of California courts will be sustained.

The Japanese will be introduced to Seward to-morrow, when their credentials will be presented and a time fixed for a Presidential interview. The Cabinet had a short session to-day.

Eight Hour Law in Illinois.

CHICAGO, April 30.—The eight-hour law goes into effect to-morrow. The workingmen's societies are preparing for a grand display, with processions and speeches by Governor Oglesby and others. The motto of the workingmen is "eight hours labor and nine hours pay." Most of the Railroad companies have notified their employees that they will be paid by the hour. Many large employing firms declare that their laborers must work as long as required, and that they will not pay a full days wages for eight hours work. The prospect is that there will be a serious disagreement in the relations of trade for some time. Some workingmen insist on the old rates of pay for the reduced time while employers will almost unanimously refuse to pay as before. The result will be awaited with much anxiety on all sides, not alone in Illinois but other States.

A murder committed in a house of ill-fame, in this city seven months since, came to light yesterday by a confession of one of the parties who was moved thereto by jealousy of her paramour. The body of the victim was found buried in a cellar.

The Pittsburg iron mills have resumed work at the old hours.

Miscellaneous.

CHICAGO, April 30.—Three men who murdered Hall in February last were hanged in Cincinnati to-day. One of the party, a mere boy, confessed. All were hanged simultaneously from the same gallows.

A mob of 200 men, near Rockport, Indiana, yesterday seized and hanged a negro and two white men, for the robbery of a store in the north portion of the county.

The first train on the Northern Pacific Road crossed the Mississippi bridge at St. Anthony, Minnesota, to-day.

An Omaha dispatch says the rumors of Hancock's expedition being in distress, and that eleven thousand Indians are encamped beyond Fort Phil Kearney and waiting to commence hostilities, are unmitigated hoaxes.

The Labor Problem

It is rendered very evident by advices from the East that scarcely any subject is attracting more general attention there than the contest which is going on between capital and labor We have before referred to this question and endeavored to show that it is impossible for the working men to gain all the advantages which it is their declared purpose to obtain Considered in another point of view, and in reference to our financial economy this subject is also one of deep interest In a late number of Hunt's Merchant's Magazine the labor problem is briefly considered in connection with the prevailing commercial depression, and some statements are made thereupon which are well worthy of attention We quote as follows

Certain movements among operative classes have in no trifling measure helped to aggravate the embarrassments connected with the reactionary period It would appear to be very obviously to the interest of the working class that they should offer no unnecessary resistance to a process resulting in the fall of prices No class suffers so severely from high prices, and none would be so largely benefitted by a fall in values As however, labor constitutes almost the exclusive cost of products, it is clear that unless producers will consent to be constantly losing on their business by paying more for labor than they get for products, the laborer must consent to a steady reduction of pay waiting for compensation in the subsequent decline of prices This requirement is however, steadily resisted by the workmen and to make their resistance more effective they are combined to organize it one. The trade associations dictate the terms upon which each member shall work, and their regulations prevent the steady process of yielding by individual workmen which would otherwise effect a gradual reduction of the labor market to the downward tendency of prices The effect of this combined movement is more disastrous than may appear at first sight It involves manufacturers in losses without any corresponding benefit to the operatives at large, while, by keeping a large proportion of the productive power of the country idle, it tends to keep up the comparative scarcity of commodities and protract the period of high prices

This is strongly argued. It probes the subject to the bottom, and gives a clear analysis of the whole problem. The rates of wages and the prices of commodities must be properly adjusted and balanced, and the process by which this is to be effected is clearly but herein pointed out.

The following extract from the Nation, a leading weekly of New York, is given as pertinent to the subject now under agitation

It is only recently that we have begun to hear of "working men" as a class apart, needing special legislation for their benefit or protection. A few years ago all Americans were supposed to be "working-men," whose proud privilege it was to be able to make their own way in the world frame their own contracts, take their turn, no matter about the nature of their occupation, in the work of government, while asking nothing from the law but protection for life and limb and property Now we are told that nobody is a "working man but a mechanic, and that his position is that of a child of the state, like that of the French workman, and that his hours of labor must be fixed for him by law lest he should hurt himself

All our sympathies are with the laboring man but it is not true that he now needs "protection" more than at former periods in our history The condition of the laboring classes of the United States is to-day vastly better than on numerous occasions in former times Half the continent is still open before our people, and energy still has the same opportunities which have been heretofore forced it. We resent the injustice which many are too ready to draw, that our working classes are becoming a herd of paupers That they have to work for their daily bread, is true; but they have always done it. Our ancestors were not above it, and did not expect to escape it. This is a fast age and people are growing restive, but the most of us will nevertheless be compelled to make our way in the world, as our ancestors did, by steady labor, by assiduous toil.

As we expected, the "organ" is in great distress because we took occasion the other day to make some remarks on its Long Tom correspondent's laudatory letter in regard to old Jo Lane and his "distinguished son," the rebel Colonel John We have only this to say: If Democrats and rebels do not want these dishonored names — joined in such terms as they deserve, let them abstain from parading them before an outraged public and demanding that they receive respect and homage. If they would have these two individuals sink into oblivion, they must themselves cease to bring them before the public. If they will continue to offend the sense of the people of this State by extolling a man, who though a citizen of Oregon and educated at the expense of the Government, turned against his country and fought in the rebel army,—if they will continue to call the father who sent him there and the man who stood up in the Senate of the United States and in a deliberately prepared speech fully justified treason, unoouraged traitors in their work and promised them his aid,—if they will continue to call such a man a patriot, and to speak of such a son in terms of admiration, they must not expect people who hate treason and detest traitors to be silent.

Several schemes of emigration from the United States to Brazil have been projected during the last two years, all of which have proved failures Most of them were undertaken under the auspices of a desperate lot of men from the South, who—as one of our historians says of the sweepings of the English prisons which were sent to Virginia in the seventeenth century to form a settlement there,—"were fitter to breed a riot than to found a colony." A Rio Janeiro correspondent of the Philadelphia Ledger says that at least one-sixth of the Brazil colonists were professional thieves, and one-half the lot went out for the express purpose of jumping the bounty, which ranged from five hundred to eight hundred dollars in gold

The New York Evening Post, a "Conservative Republican" paper, gives the following editorially, as a statement of the views of General Grant It is a bitter pill for the Copperheads to crack

"The country holds with Grant, who said in our hearing not long ago that the rebels we whipped, as it was our duty to do they fought us bravely, and I for one have no spite against them, if they behave themselves I shall think well of them, But the Copperheads and peace men at the North the men who during the war reviled the soldiers and discouraged the enemy, and did their at most to stop supplies and reinforcements to our boys in the front, such men I can't forgive, I'll never forget them or have anything to do with them."

The Lafayette Courier protests against the nomination of a Presidential ticket with Gen Grant for the first place and R. E Lee for the second, and insists that the names should be presented in the reverse order We fear the Courier is a little fast If Grant were elected President and Lee Vice President, some good Democrat like Booth would soon find a way to make Lee President It would be the easiest thing in the world

His Health has Improved—The St Louis Democrat, alluding to the health of Jeff. Davis, says

"Mrs Jefferson Davis has been favored with another boy This proves that the health of Mr Jefferson Davis has not been so bad as his sympathizers have been representing"

Our "Yankee Doodle" has had the notes knocked out of it by a learned writer, who shows that it was a known tune in Spain upwards of two centuries ago

Terrible Tragedy.—The Virginia Trespass says of a murder recently committed in Honey Lake Valley

One of the most horrible murders ever committed on this coast was perpetrated in the valley by a man named Richard Thompson, who murdered his wife with a hatchet. When found, her body was horribly mutilated, hardly a limb being entirely whole. Thompson was arrested by Sheriff Keighley, and waiving a preliminary examination was committed to the county jail for trial at the June term of court. The deceased was about fifty years of age, and it is supposed was murdered in a general fist fight with her husband, both being addicted to the use of ardent spirits. Two children, both grown to womanhood and married, and whose characters are beyond reproach are left to bewail this terrible family tragedy. Thompson is in jail, and appears a piece of human stolidity, paying but little attention to aught but his beads, which he, being a devout Catholic, counts constantly. His neck will, probably, increase its present length during the coming summer

Irish Republic Proclamation

The following address is said to have been put forth in Ireland early in March

We have suffered centuries of outrage enforced poverty and bitter misery Our rights and liberties have been trampled on by an alien aristocracy who treating as foes usurped our lands, and drew away from our unfortunate country all material riches The real owners of the soil were removed to make room for cattle, and driven across the ocean to seek the means of living and the political right denied to them at home while our men of thought and action were condemned to loss of life and liberty But we never lost the memory and hope of a national existence We appealed in vain to the reason and sense of the dominant power Our mildest remonstrances were met with sneers and contempt Our appeals to arms have always been unsuccessful To day, having no honorable alternative left we again appeal to force as our last resort We accept the conditions of appeal, manfully deeming it better to die in the struggle for freedom than to continue an existence of utter serfdom All men are born with equal rights, and, in associating to protect one another and share public burthens, justice demands that such associations should rest upon a basis which maintains equality instead of destroying it We therefore declare that, unable longer to endure the curse of monarchical government, we aim at founding a republic, based on universal suffrage which shall secure to all the intrinsic value of their labor The soil of Ireland, at present in the possession of an oligarchy belongs to us, the Irish people, and to us it must be restored We declare, also, in favor of absolute liberty of conscience, and the complete separation of Church and State We appeal to the Highest Tribunal for evidence of the justness of our cause History bears testimony to the intensity of our sufferings, and we declare, in the face of our brethren, that we intend no war against the people of England—our war is against the aristocratic locusts, whether English or Irish, who have eaten the verdure of our fields—against the aristocratic leeches who drain alike our blood and theirs Republicans of the entire world, our cause is your cause Our enemy is your enemy Let your hearts be with us As for you, workmen of England, it is not only your hearts we wish, but your arms Remember the starvation and degradation brought to your firesides by the oppression of labor Remember the past, look well to the future, and avenge yourselves by giving liberty to your child ren in the coming struggle for freedom.

CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000!

Directors:

JOHN PARROTT CHAS. B McLANE,
WM C RALSTON, A HAYWARD,
LOUIS A CARNETT.

LOUIS A CARNETT President and Manager
JOHN HEWSTON Jr Chemist and Superintendent

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their terms of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the minting and commercial value of bullion

Their charges hereafter will be as follows;

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,600, and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1 600, and one-eighth of one per cent, for all amounts over that sum and one per cent on the silver contained Returns made in twenty four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS

On bullion under 900 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce
On bullion from 900@750 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce
On bullion from 750@600 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce
On bullion from 600@450 parts gold, 8 cents per ounce
Above 450 the only charge will be for coinage. But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—a half of one per cent—and which is paid by us to that institution But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY EIGHT HOURS

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate customary at the Mint

Gold bars of other Assayers on good standing, will be cashed by us at the highest market rates

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co s Express

CHARGES AT U S. BRANCH MINT

For the convenience of those not familiar with the forms of the Mint, we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 900 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 900@600 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 600@750 parts gold, 7 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 750@900 parts gold 11 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 900@949½ parts gold, 14 cents per ounce

The charge for coinage is half of one per cent, and the charge for making fine silver bars, the same

Comparing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of unparted gold bars sold in the market—must be sold at the flowing rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage

900 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents

850 par to equal Mint return, at refining charge of 14 cents

845 par to equal San Francisco A & R. Works return at refining charge of 3 cents

GOOD TEMPLARS' MAY-DAY FESTIVAL.—The Good Templars' excursion and pic-nic, yesterday, was attended by about three hundred people and was a very well got up affair, and nothing occurred during the entire day to mar the pleasures of the occasion. The Alert left the F T Co's wharf at 9 A M with a large part of the guests, accompanied by the Mechanics' Brass Band, and landing them at the grounds, went to Oregon City, whence she returned to Portland shortly after 12 M. Quite a number who could not join the morning, went up on her at 1 P M and the Templars of Milwaukie joined the party at that place, in the afternoon. The coronation of the May Queen and other ceremonies were, of course, the most interesting events of the day. The following are the "speeches" delivered—arranged for the occasion, by Mr Waters of this city:

The May Queen was Miss Jennie A. Waters and the Fairy was Miss Virginia Cason. Arrayed in white and the Fairy was White, the ladies of honor formed in a ring at the platform, the ladies of honor formed in a second circle, Queen at the apex, the Queen's officers on the outside of the semi-circle, the chief officer, Mr Wakefield, advanced within a few paces in front, saluted by dipping on the right knee, then rising said:

"Arise! the morn from the lap of night,
The world irradiating with its glorious light,
In May, the sweetest month of all the year,
With rosy smiles and promises sincere,
Kisses the path to Summer's golden prime,
Of Nature's beauties the most bounteous time,
It is we are here to celebrate this day,
To hail our welcome nature from her whispy sway,
To hold our revels on this carpeted green,
We must commence by crowning you our Queen.
Fair lady, join on whom our choice has fell,
To guide our actions and to hold the spell
That calls obedience from her mailed retreat,
And lay it panting, quivering at your feet—
To you we pay allegiance Let now your power
Restore us to the happy hour,
That when we recall the doings of to-day,
We'll think with pleasure of our Queen of the May!"

The Queen was then conducted to the throne and crowned by the Chief Officer, the ladies and officers forming a semicircle on the platform in the rear of the throne. The Fairy, addressing with the crown, said:

"Bow on your snowy brow I press,
This crown of love and happiness—
Fit emblem of your power,
Let no inquire if you'll obey the laws
That govern us to-day!
Fair sovereign of the hour.

The Queen also said:

"Bright Fairy, of another sphere,
To your behest a willing ear,
I, tutored, am to make
What—— laws the general good
Require That should be understood—
Right! them for my sake."

The Fairy said:

"I, Fly, claim which no higher claim,
Given Earth, the precedence, language name,
Its rich investiture earth born of heaven—
Mercy and gentleness to it allotted given,
These heavenly attributes, those must possess,
Who guide the subjects on to happiness;
Their lives be peaceful, shine own prolongs
Their praise of them, an ever ending songs
Their love, more ardent than Promethean fire;
Per earthly welfare, their sole heart's desire,
Til ripening ages through the past is seen
The ——ripening of our May-day Queen!"

The May Queen then knelt while the Fairy Queen held the crown above her head, and repeated the following:

"This Floral Crown, not gold so pure,
As I by Art's mechanic fingers,
Virtue exalteant in these endues
While lightly on thy brow it lingers,
And when its fragrance will depart,
Its beauty flown,
Take well the lesson to thy heart,
'Twill be thine own; 'twill be thine own."

(Upon the crown on her head. Music—Flourish.)

After the music ceased, the Fairy Queen addressed the May Queen as follows:

"Arise, fair Queen, thy mission's now begun,
To mix thy subjects, each and every one;
Let well thy part, with time have no delay;
Time's but commenced, mine's finished for to-day."

The Queen's ladies and gentlemen, bowing now passed in front of her, and re-formed in the same order as before. On the conclusion of this the chief officer proposed the following:

"May health and happiness, the richest gifts of heaven, to our May Queen abundantly be given.

Her life a task,
To pleasures name,
'Tis all we'll ask,
'Tis all we'll claim,
Then hail to our new made Queen!

CHORUS—All hail!

The Queen then addressed all as follows:

"Most loyal subjects! words cannot express
My —— of thanks, my heartfelt happiness;
Your warm devotion calls for higher praise
Than language utters in its tortuous ways.
No speech of mine has ever ruled the page
Of history's wonderful pilgrimage—
You must take acts for thoughts but ill my own,
Those are but words—my acts are all my own.
As we are here to worship at the shrine
Of ——is most favored of the nine—
For a time at least to cast our cares aside
And launch our bark on pleasure's silvery tide,
And make the most the fleeting hours allow
To hold our revels, we'll commence them now.

Calls the gentlemen, one by one, who will have charge of the different sports)

On yonder tree, whose stalwart arms betray
Sufficient strength and vigor for the test,
Erect a swing; our Marshal will purvey
Of materials necessary, this very best,
But that safety all your efforts crown,
For woe betide you if the swing comes down.

(Calls another gentlemen.)

With winged and lightly tripping feet
Range through and through this verdant grove,
Search out some cool, secure retreat,
Where loving couples safe may rove.
Of refreshments, with liberal hand provide,
Thy task's not arduous—see all are satisfied.

Calls —— gentleman, and the following is addressed to him.)

I want you for my herald. Loud proclaim
That all my pleasure and express desire,
Each gentleman, to honor their fair name,
Will from his lady guest with haste retire,
But minister to their wants' their wish obey,
Sweet smiles and words their conduct will repay.

(Gentlemen retire.)

And now my friends a word with you,
Are on our several missions we depart:
Keep closely watched the end in view—
For full enjoyment, study well the art
Of true and friendly greeting. Let all proclaim
That we are joined in heart as well as name.
Now! let wood and glade resound
With notes of revelry, and laughter's peal,
Every one with mirth and fun abound;
From present cares the stinging arrow steal,
Drop discontent and sorrow, the mask assume,
Confront with pleasure the impending gloom.
Strike up the music. Ladies attend
On your liege Queen. We'll now descend,
And mix ourselves among the happy throng,
To keep aloof would be a grievous wrong.

Music begins. (A march—spirited.)

The party then dispersed themselves about the grounds and each sought his or her own way of enjoyment till past three, when all embarked again on the steamer and returned to the city, having spent a day of unalloyed pleasure.

Lots 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 8, 7 and 8 in block No. 1, 25x100 feet each, $285.

Lots 9, 10, 11 and 12 in block No. 1, 25x100 feet each, $110.

Block 6, $196.

The lots were 25 by 100 feet. The balance of the advertised lots will be sold to-day.

PUBLIC EXCURSION FROM OREGON CITY.—The Good Templars of Oregon City yesterday chartered the Echo and made a pic-nic excursion to Rock Island, where they had their usual May-Day ceremonies. Miss Ardula Randall was the May Queen and Mr. J. D Locy her Prime Minister—Col W. S. White, Marshal; Mrs. Bray, Assistant Marshal. It is related—we have no official information—that Mr. Locey after crowning the fair Queen and his own happiness by passing through another ceremony far more interesting and important, in which a minister of the church figured and in which Mr L and the May Queen made the responses. We trust that it is true, and we shower upon the happy couple our blessings and congratulations.

BAD TRICK.—A party from Portland informs us that things are very dull there, forwarding goods for the up country not having yet commenced. The city is pretty dull, however, with miners waiting for the opening of the roads to the mines. He describes the weather as unusual, it having rained nearly every day while he was there.—Victoria News.

That "party" must have been unusually drunk while in Portland, and unable to state precisely whether the sun shone, or whether it rained, snowed, froze or thawed. Since the 1st of March we have not had more than three or four successive days of rain. The weather has been uninterruptedly pleasant and bright.

RACES.—A race has been made between the "Plow-boy" and Alex Hamilton, to be run at the White House at 2 P. M. next Saturday, 40 yards, for $250 a side. Twenty dollars forfeit on each side, is now up, in the hands of Mr. Clark. On the same afternoon a horse race will be run, single dash of half a mile, for a purse of $25, put up by Mr. Williams, five for all horses, catch weights, 2 riders. Both races will be upon the River-side track.

THE STEAMER.—We learn that it is expected that the Fidelity will, upon arriving at Victoria, after her next trip to this port, be put up for a trip to Sitka. The determination is not positive as yet, but will be settled before the time of starting will be about the middle of the present month.

BASE BALL.—The Pioneers will meet at the grounds across the river, this afternoon, for practice, at five o'clock.

COUNCIL PROCEEDINGS.—The Council met Wednesday evening, His Honor, the Mayor, presiding. Present Carson, Hallock, McCraken, Lownsdale, Rosenheim, Ziber.

PETITIONS, REMONSTRANCES, COMMUNICATIONS, ETC.

A communication was received from the Street Commissioner suggesting that measures be taken to prevent damage by flow of water, to the embankment at junction of Front and Jefferson. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

Smith & Davis and twenty others remonstrated against the proposed improvement of Yamhill street. A remonstrance against the same from Directors of School District No. 1, was received. Referred to the same Committee.

A communication was received from John Badollet, asking that his name be transferred from the petition for plank improvement of Second street to the petition for broken stone and gravel improvement. Laid over.

J B Wallace and twenty others petitioned for the filling of the break in Front street near Harrison, so that teams can pass. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

A communication was received from the Portland Macadamized Road Company, relating to the break in their road by high water in January, when Front street was also broken, and suggesting a compromise of their supposed claim against the city for damages. Laid on the table.

Mrs J Mead asked for the use of Front street opposite lot 2, block 4, for building purposes. Granted.

A communication was received from H W Corbett of the Oregon and California Stage Company, representing that an assessment has been wrongfully made against the company to the amount of $1,000; that all the property of the company is lawfully assessable elsewhere, and asking that the tax be remitted. Referred to the Committee of Ways and Means.

D. W. Burnside asked to have refunded to him, $468, purchase money of lot 1 block 8, purchased by him for taxes assessed against Thomas Stanton—he having purchased all of Stanton's rights. Referred to the Committee on Streets and Public Property.

J. W. Kerns, for C. Kelly submitted a proposition to sell to the city the O. K. hotel, for the sum of $6,000, payable in one year with lawful interest. Referred to the Committee on River Improvements.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

The Committee on Streets and Public Property, to whom had been referred the petitions for improvement of Second street, reported that for the improvement between Morrison and Madison, the petitioners for broken stone and gravel, represent 1,060 feet, while the petitioners for plank roadway and gravel represent 833⅓ feet.

Mr. Lownsdale moved that notice be given for improvement as asked in the majority petition.

Mr. Hallock moved an amendment, by resolution, directing the publication of notice for improvement by planking and graveling.

The amendment was adopted and the notice ordered published in accordance therewith.

The Committee on Streets and Public Property, to who was referred the petition of L. Besser and others for reservey of the grades of Front and Jefferson, at and near the junction, reported a certificate by Geo H. Belden to the effect that the allotments to property holders of grading, have been made in accordance with the field notes of the authorized survey. The report was adopted.

The Committee on Health and Police, to whom was referred the petition of Dan'l Balkland, (attendant upon small pox case) for relief, reported adversely. Report adopted.

REPORTS OF OFFICERS.

The Recorder's report for the month of March was received. Recorder's fees $79 05; Marshal's fees $50 80; money collected $32. Report filed.

The Treasurer reported the tax-roll for 1866, showing the amounts paid and unpaid. Filed.

CLAIMS AGAINST THE CITY.

The following bills were ordered paid: R Pittock, rent of No 4's engine house, one month, $30. Portland Gas Light Co, gas etc. for April, $308. Portland Water Co, for water for April, $50. W. S. Caldwell, salary to May 1st, $60. Thos. O'Connor, salary to date, $50. P. Saunders, salary for April, $100. C. W. Burrage, services as City Surveyor, $118. D. D. Clark, Assistant to Surveyor, $45. John Atwood, assistant to Surveyor, $18. Geo H Belden, examining field notes etc, $6 38. J. J. Hoffman, fees for March, $79 00. H L. Hoyt, fees for March and board of prisoners, $100 80. H L Hoyt, salary from April 10 to date, $83 33. Willamette Iron Works, sundries for dredger, $1 25. W. H. Bailey, making tracings for Swan Island bar map, $35. Jas Daugherty, wages for April as watchman on dredger, $60. J H Lyon, glazing for engine company, $3 25. Chas Stewart, pew rep to cistern, $90. Willamette Iron Works, cistern traps, etc, $50. Same, repairs to hose, etc, $10 33. C. H. Myers, hydrant, material for and work on same, $1 25.

The bills of certain persons, jurors in City vs. Brashard and City vs. Delschneider, were referred to the Committee on Health and Police.

READING OF ORDINANCES.

The ordinance providing for a loan for river improvements, coming up for a 3d reading, was laid on the table.

The ordinance providing for the opening of A street, between North Fifth and North Sixth, was read the third time and passed—yeas, all present.

PROPOSITIONS AND MOTIONS.

On motion of Mr. Lownsdale, a notice for sidewalks and cross-walks on Second street, between Madison and Harrison, was ordered published.

Mr. Lownsdale offered the following resolution:

Whereas, Many ordinances necessary to be passed by the Common Council in relation to street improvements are lengthy, and their publication would be expensive, and many other ordinances necessary under the present charter to be passed are short lived, and will have had their day and become things of the past before the same can be published; and

Whereas, The public become very fully acquainted with all the material facts of such ordinances (particularly of such as relate to street improvements) from other publications required by the city charter, and the publication of such ordinances would be an unnecessary expenditure of the public money, therefore,

Resolved, That the city Clerk be instructed not to cause the publication of any ordinances, except such as he may be directed by the Council from time to time to publish; and that the resolution passed by the Council on the 24th of April, 1867, directing the publication of all ordinances hereafter passed, be, and the same is hereby rescinded.

The vote on the resolution being taken, the yeas and nays resulted as follows:

YEAS—Messrs. Carson, Lownsdale and McCraken—3.

NAYS—Messrs Fechheimer, Hallock, Rosenheim and Ziber—4.

So the resolution was lost.

Mr. McCraken offered a resolution which was adopted, directing the City Surveyor to survey, estimate and set grade stakes on North Front street, between G and E streets.

Mr McCraken offered a resolution which was adopted, directing the payment of interest on City bonds due the 1st of May, upon presentation of coupons.

The Council adjourned.

CIRCUIT COURT.—SHATTUCK, JUDGE.—The following are the proceedings of yesterday, May 1st:

AN ANTIDOTE FOR POISON.

THE PAIN KILLER.—Rev T Allen, writing from Tavoy, Burmah, says: "Within the past four years I have used and disposed of about five hundred bottles, but am now out. Please send me a fresh supply as soon as you can—say two hundred bottles. I dare not be without it myself, and there are endless calls for it, both by Burmans and Karens. I always take it with me into the jungles and have frequent occasion to use it, both on myself and others. One night, while sleeping in an open Zayatz, I was awoke by a most excruciating pain in my foot. On examination, I found I had been bitten by a centipede. I immediately applied the Pain Killer, and found instant relief. In less than an hour I was again asleep."

Rev. Mr Hibbard, writing from Burmah to his father, says: "I have used Davis' Pain Killer for coughs, colds, summer complaints, burns, and for the sting of scorpions, with uniform success. We always keep it where we can lay our hands on it in the dark, if need be." ap29d1c

A Boy Dragged Several Blocks through the Water by a Fish

It seems that a number of men and boys were working yesterday opposite the Detroit and Milwaukie depot, when one of the number saw an enormous sturgeon swimming near the surface of the dock The party armed themselves with pike and other weapons, while a boy named Patrick Nolan procured a boat hook and resolved upon the capture of the monster Patrick made a lunge at the fish and caught the hook in its back, but before he had time to hence himself and haul the fish on the dock, it darted out into the river jerking him from his footing into the icy water The boy held on to the boat hook and was dragged with great velocity into the middle of the stream, and then out toward the lake.

The spectators, meanwhile, were almost paralyzed with terror. They were powerless to help Nolan, and could only look on and see him drag god through the water by a monstrous fish at a rate of speed exceeding that of the fastest row boat They called to him to release his hold of the boat hook, but he, either too much terrified to heed, or not being able to hear, clung to it as if it was his only hope of life The monster fish maddened by pain, and terrified by the load he was dragging, lashed the water into flakes of foam as he sped out toward the great lake, never staying his mad course Death seemed the only fate for the boy, and one or two of those on shore knelt down and implored the mercies of Heaven upon his soul as he fast receded from their sight—probably forever. Providentially, however, a couple of fishermen, who were in a boat near the strait out, saw what had transpired, and although unable, at that distance, to understand the full nature of the affair, intercepted the course of the fish. But just as they were about to grasp the inanimate form of the lad, the fish changed its course, and the boy escaped from their hands. They commenced a pursuit, however, and being skilled oarsmen, and the fish having somewhat slackened its speed, they succeeded, after a chase of about half a block, in getting hold of the lad and lifting him into the boat, while the sturgeon passed on into the lake. The boy fell fainting into the bottom of the boat, and was taken home, almost dead from terror and the chill of the water. Had he remained in the water a moment longer his life would have paid the forfeit of his attempt to deprive one of the finny tribe of its existence.—Milwaukie Sentinel.

PICTURE RUGS.—The tufted rugs having landscapes and animals upon them, are made by the Crossleys at Halifax, in Yorkshire, England. A single rug would cost a deal of money to purchase. It is multiplication that makes the article cheap This is the manner in which rugs are manufactured A girl has before her a design which instructs her only in the way she is to place the woolen threads in an oblong box, but gives her no idea of the picture to be developed. Every color has its thread placed by rule. In a long course of time, the high box is filled, and her work is done. The pile of woolen threads is then condensed by hydrostatic pressure to the degree necessary to bring out the picture, as you look at it endwise. This work is all done in the upper story of the manufactory. It is then taken to the ground floor, in front of a razor-wheel thirty feet in diameter Alongside is a vat of boiling India rubber; by the side of which are piled the coarse hempen cloths which form the back of our fancy rugs. Of these, one at a time is dipped into the vat and gets a superficial coating of the rubber Quickly this is tightly plastered against the end of the wooden picture block and the sharp wheel cuts off a very thin slice, which adheres firmly to the hempen base. The rug is finished.

Several hundred rugs are thus made from one pattern, just as a certain kind of candy-stick cut into many sections, always presents the same word to view

The original idea was Sir John Crossley's. His best weaver, named Thom, annoyed the foreman of his shop, by not being punctual at his loom. This being ascribed to bad habits, he was discharged After a time he presented himself at the counting-room with an awkward looking bundle, and it was only by determed pertinacity that he obtained an audience with Sir John; for he would not make known his business to any other person. Gaining an interview, he said: "I have an invention, Sir John, mayhap you would like to look at it?"

"Certainly, Thom; let me see it."

"Nay, but master, if it should be a great thing for you, what would you do for me?"

Sir John had got many useful hints, from this man, and he had faith that there was something in the invention. "Well, Thom, what would you wish me to do for you, if I like your invention?"

"Master, I don't want to be put out of my cottage, I want always to stay there."

"Certainly; what next?"

"Won't you," said Thom, "give a hundred pounds a year as long as Betsey and I live?"

"Yes, what else?"

Thom began to take courage. "Betsey said she would like a keg of ale always in the house."

And some 'baccy to smoke?"

"I more!"

Thom took a hitch at his breeches and scratched his head "I think what else a man could want more, save to be restored to my loom and work at when I like and not be turned off."

So the bargain was made and concluded. On inspection, Sir John saw that the patent rug maker was a prize. He accepted it and had the papers drawn and executed at once.

This invention has made more than a half a million of pounds, and Sir John not only lived up to his agreement, but he has educated and handsomely provided for the inventor's children. As for Thom and Betsey, no amount of money could add to their happiness. Their cottage is ever full of friends, drinking ale and smoking; and they themselves are free to work or get hoosy, as they please.

BUCKWHEAT CAKES AND MARRIAGES.—The Chicago Republican of March 14th, relates the following:

Late on Tuesday night, Policeman 664 found a gentleman sitting in the middle of Canal street. His tall, shiny hat was between his knees and he seemed to be kneading something in it. Of course he was asked what he was doing. Immediately he replied that he was making buckwheat cakes—would the policeman help him? If he would he might eat some of them The policeman told him he would and that if he would go with him he would show him where they could be cooked Pleased at this idea, R. Y. Benson—that was the gentleman's name—took his hat, which was filled with mud, and went with the policeman. Naturally, they went to the station.

At the Police Court yesterday Benson was asked what he had to say for himself. Looking mournfully at his torn and dirtied hat, he got off at the Justice, he said

"Love, buckwheat cakes and a policeman brought me here. I am afraid something more will be necessary to get me out again. My story is one of love and whiskey; the two always go together. For a long time I loved Miss Hannah Buckwheat cakes were my first love; Hannah my second. I wooed her in the orthodox fashion; that is, I spent all my money on her and damned my soul with lying flatteries I took her to all the balls, theatres and operas. Oh, it was a costly love. I owe $97 35 on it yet. For two months I have been intending to propose to her. It was necessary, for I could no longer get under clothes on trust As my wife she could make them. Last night I took her to a party. As I had no money we had to walk there. I told her she needed exercise, and that walking was the best kind. The party was pleasant. We waltzed, and her divine form was clasped by my arm. At one o'clock we started for her house. When we got to the door she asked me if I was going home. I told her I was; that I wanted buckwheat cakes for breakfast. I was asked how many I could eat at a time. Truthfully I answered, "eighty-six." Then she scornfully said that she wouldn't like to be my cook. Angered at her wickedness, I told her that I had intended to ask her to be, but after that I wouldn't. She banged the door and I left. But my heart was broken. In deep despair I went to a restaurant and wildly asked for consolation. He gave it to me straight. I took a good deal of consolation. But it didn't do my heart any good; it all went to my head. When I left there I went and sat down in the street. I don't know why, unless it was to spoil my hat.

"Now, Judge, you must not fine me. Remember that I am a heart broken man. I have gone back on Hannah, and it was all her fault. I am very sad and very sick. Lend me a that and let me go."

Justice—Fine this man ten dollars for drunk ness. Five dollars for spoiling his hat, and fifteen dollars for contempt of the sex to which the Court's mother belongs.

The Chicago Evening Post says "Robt. Lincoln, the oldest son of President Lincoln, is about to enter upon the practice of law in this city, in partnership with Charles Scammon, son of Hon J. Y Scammon Since the death of his father, Mr. Lincoln has been a student in the office of Scammon and McCagg The style of the new firm will be Scammon & Lincoln.

A SHIPWRECK.—Wiggins was one day with a friend, when he observed a poor dog that had been killed, lying in the gutter. Wiggins paused, gazed at the dead animal, and at last said "Here is another shipwreck." "Shipwreck! where?" "Why, there's a bark that's lost forever." His companion growled and passed on.

A Review of the Report of the Chief of Ordnance

[From the Washington Chronicle.]

One of the documents accompanying the message from the President is a voluminous paper, furnishing interesting statistics, ingeniously arranged to magnify the importance of the Ordnance Department Obscure references to experiments with large rifled guns at Fort Monroe, indicate to those who are familiar with West Point tactics, an intention by and by to saddle the country with a few millions of expenditure for the benefit of the joint owners of the Rodman patents Seven thousand eight hundred and ninety three cannon, of all calibres were purchased during the war, of which four thousand and forty eight were field guns six hundred and seventy seven were siege guns, eight hundred and seven teen mortars, and two thousand three hundred and fifty guns of large calibre

Of these last, one 20 inch Rodman gun cost (at the foundry) $32,781 87 The cost of transportation of this enormous mass of iron, weighing more than fifty tons, from Pittsburg to the Narrows, New York, where it is mounted probably equaled the cost of the gun. We estimate the cost of carriage and mounting—the report is silent on these last items—at $20 000, other expenses, such as experiments on metals, and with the testing machine, drawings, superintendence of officers in the pay of the United States, proofs, etc., $15,000 more, and we have the round sum of $100,000 as the cost of this gun, which has been fired three times, 120 shot and 50 shell have been purchased for it, the cost of these projectiles is put down at $13,818 06, making altogether $117, 818 06 for a gun, of which it has plausibly been said "If it is trained upon a steamship, two miles below, coming up the harbor at a speed of twelve knots per hour, it cannot be landed to fire at the ship a second time until it is two miles or more above, in other words, a moderately fast ship can sail four miles or more while the gun is being loaded. Without attempting to load the gun at all, men enough cannot be got about it to train it around, so as to keep it pointed at a fast steamer," and "neither the War nor Navy Department would accept even a smaller first gun of a new model from a private contractor without an extreme proof of from five hundred to one thousand rounds, but in this case, where the doubt of success must have been greater than in any gun ever made in the world, the gun is put into service without an extreme proof If it ever is attempted to point it at a ship that is moving erratically or in a zigzag direction, it will be found so ponderous that correct pointing cannot be attained, and the chances of a hit will be less than one in a million. Such guns may have some moral effect, but they will never have any other."

Two hundred and eighty-six fifteen inch Rodman guns, it is shown, have been purchased, which cost at the foundry $1,923,876 44, 24,201 projectiles cost $384,234 70, which is pretty liberal provision for these guns, not one of which has ever been fired against the enemy.

The experience of the war has been that four of our gunners have been killed by the bursting of heavy guns for one by the projectiles of the enemy. The enemy never attacked any of our northern forts, on which fifteen-inch guns were mounted, consequently the fifteen-inch Rodman guns have about the same history as the twenty-inch gun. One or two may have been fired slowly a few hundred rounds for extreme proof. A few of them have been fired a limited number of rounds in target or range practice, and the rest three service charges for proof. Three of them, perhaps more, have burst spontaneously in the foundry, without being fired at all

The Navy Department has also purchased a large number of this kind of gun. A very large proportion of all those actually fired a number of shots in succession, as in battle, have burst. The cost of the carriages for the army 15 inch guns is not included in the report, a large number of them have been supplied and undoubtedly at a heavy cost. One thousand and fifteen 1 inch Rodman guns have been purchased at a cost of $1,672,948 55, 169,150 projectiles for them at a cost of $705,427 91 We will venture to assert there has not been one hundred of this great number of projectiles fired in battle or at the enemy. If wrought iron carriages are furnished for them, as contemplated, it will involve an expenditure of a million dollars.

"It is believed" that these guns cannot be fired as rapidly as it is necessary in emergencies, such as they have been made for, without bursting them. In fact, Mr. Ward asserts that "General Rodman himself would no more dare to stand closely beside one of this calibre—or any other larger—while it was being fired twenty rounds in twenty minutes, than he would sit over an open cask of gunpowder, in a magazine, with a lighted cigar in his mouth.

Two hundred and thirty-seven 100-pounder Parrott rifle guns at a cost of $309,093 95; ninety 300-pounder do. $201,234 75; forty 300-pounder do. $107,470 50. Three hundred and sixty-seven guns and three hundred and sixty-eight carriages for them of Mr. Parrott, costing $230,105 80, one more carriage than necessary for the guns. One hundred and twenty-seven thousand eight hundred and twenty-seven projectiles were also purchased of Mr. Parrott for the same guns at a cost of $1,118,522 55.

The Hotchkiss projectile was found during the war to be better for the Parrott guns than Mr. Parrott's own, but the Ordnance Department professed to be precluded from purchasing any other than Parrott's by the remonstrances made by him against it. We also remember that the ordnance officers exposed themselves for the exclusion of guns from other makers by referring to the cheapness of the Parrott guns We now suspect that it was arranged between the Ordnance Department and Mr. Parrott that projectiles and carriages should be purchased with the guns at high prices, so as to make it appear that the guns were furnished at a low price to avoid competition. With this new light two items in the statement furnished by the chief of ordnance, placed in juxtaposition, are significant: Thirteen 8-inch wrought-iron guns, (Ames,) $215,163 96; two hundred and thirty-seven 100-pounder Parrott guns, $309,093 95.

We think it strange that no mention is made in the report of the large number of old 24, 32 and 42-pounders that were handed and rifled by the Ordnance Department. Sixty-three thousand seven hundred and forty six Parrott projectiles were purchased for these guns at a cost of $818,560 05; not one of these projectiles or one of the guns were ever used The Ordnance Department was warned in the public press, time after time, in advance, not to commit this great folly and wrong. It was also known that a similar experiment had utterly failed in France, and the English Government had handed two hundred and twelve 68 pounders, and rifled them, all of which had failed in 1862, and they were thrown away as old iron.

Was this another sop for Mr. Parrott as an inducement to fix the low price upon guns?

The Parrott guns have also failed whenever subjected to the "test of battle," by which we mean rapid firing. The slow firing practiced at the proving ground is no test, consequently our guns from the beginning have not been proved On Morris Island, under Gen. Gilmore, and at the assault on Fort Fisher, are the two memorable occasions on which guns were proved. Gen. Gilmore burst twenty three Parrott guns, and Admiral Porter "all the rifled guns in the fleet"

On the 1st of July, 1865, the navy had purchased two hundred and twenty large Parrott guns, not more than one half of them had been in battle, yet about forty had "burst or been otherwise disabled." One paragraph in the report is as follows:

"The experiments which have been carried on at Fort Monroe arsenal to test the power and endurance of the 8 inch and 12 inch rifle guns, (in the plural by associating two guns,) made of cast iron by this department, are highly satisfactory, and warrant the belief that cast iron rifle guns of these calibres may be introduced into the military service with safety and advantage" (advantage to the makers and safety to the department, of course). The 12-inch rifle, throwing a projectile of six hundred pounds, and with fifty-five pounds of powder, mammoth powder, equal to twenty five pounds of No 7, has been fired three hundred and ninety times "It is believed no rifle gun of this calibre has ever given so great endurance" Now we would ask, in all seriousness, why the Chief of Ordnance does not state in connection with this paragraph that every rifled gun of large calibre ever introduced into the United States service has been subjected to the same or more severe proof, resulting in the reception of a large number into service, based on such trial, all of which burst or became disabled when a gun of the same kind was fired rapidly in service? We can imagine the breathless suspense of General Rodman during the war, lest some fort on which guns of large calibre, cast hollow, and cooled from the interior, were mounted, should be attacked, the guns be fired rapidly as the heavy Parrotts; as well as when the Fort Monroe experiments were being conducted, lest the intervals of time between the shots should not be great enough, and the trial gun burst.

The trial three hundred pounder Parrott was fired four hundred and fifty times, slowly, at the proving ground, upon which it was accepted, thirty five like it purchased by the navy, and forty by the army, costing $400,000 for the guns, $150,000 for the carriages, $200,000 for projectiles, $50 000 for proof and transportation, $800,000 altogether for seventy-five guns, of which every one fired in battle has burst, and now the whole are condemned

It is probable that the next report of the Chief of Ordnance we are favored with will inform us that about a thousand of these 12-inch Rodman guns cost hollow, and cooled from the interior have been purchased, together with their carriages, projectiles, implements, etc., at a cost of say $20,000 each, $20,000,000 altogether—a mere bagatelle

We think we can see what the Fort Monroe experiments lead to, and if the Chief of Ordnance and Rodman do now introduce 12 inch rifle guns into service, on this old worn out and insufficient test, it will certainly be a very clever operation

The appropriations that are required yearly for fortifications amount to millions of dollars, nearly a hundred millions has already been expended on them, another hundred millions has been expended in iron clad ships, which, to preserve, will require enormous yearly outlays What value have ships of war or forts without offensive guns? We wish that Congress could see that it requires practical knowledge to construct engines of war, that some system for the disbursement of public money is necessary, which will secure honesty and accountability and furnish guarantee that the articles purchased shall be useful and accomplish the object for which they are obtained

The Government should not build engines for itself, it can exact no forfeit from itself. Competition, under the contract system, with security, is the proper manner to obtain inventions and guns.

We have cause for alarm when we see the Ordnance Department proceeding toward the adoption of a new rifle gun of large calibre, to be made by an official inventor and constructor of ordnance, under the auspices of a department responsible to no one for failure, in the same manner each that has preceded it has been introduced into service. It is time to inaugurate a new system commensurate with the advance of knowledge on the subject.

GEOLOGICAL DISCOVERIES.—The lovers of science will be interested in learning that there has recently been discovered under the tertiary formation in the lower part of Broadway a singular stratum of rock, which seems to be gneiss or very hard granite, and is evidently an artificial structure. It is laid in regular blocks, each one some six or eight inches square, and they are very closely joined, so as to resist heavy pressure The upper surface of this singular formation is quite smooth, very likely from the friction of horses' or camels' hoofs and wheels of chariots or other vehicles of the olden time. Antiquarians are much excited over the discovery, particularly those who favor the theory that this continent was once the seat of civilization equalling that of Egypt, as (they contend) the wonderful buried cities in Yucatan and the golden relics of Chirlqui fully attest If their theory is well founded there is no reason to doubt that this remarkable artificial rock formation in Broadway may have been covered with the Central American cities, the mounds of the Scioto Valley, or the Scandinavian inscription on Brighton Rock. But, whatever may be its age, the utilitarian spirit of the day has already fixed upon it, and it is currently reported that it is to be used as a substitute for the Russ pavement, which was lost some time after Writing became contractor for cleaning the streets, and of which no vestige has been seen for more than half a year As this ancient formation is cropping out, here and there, it may not be entirely absurd to hope that enough of it will be discovered, in the course of the Spring, to make a tolerable pavement as far as Union-square We hear that Italian mud couches are even now bowling smoothly over the solid bed of the old Appian Way, and why should not modern wheels wake the echoes of the Astor or ante aboriginal pavement in our own City?—N Y. Times.

"THE VAGARIES OF AN INNOCENT"—Mark Twain, who is now in New York, complains bitterly of the doings of his "chum" It is enough to make one's heart ache to hear him.

This simple comrade of mine keeps me in hot water all the time. He takes a fancy to every sort of foolishness. He wants to hire a mulatto and put him in livery, like the nabobs of the town. He had almost consummated his diabolism when I discovered his intent. I said:

"What is that fellow doing in the hall with that blacking box label on his hat, and that fantastic costume on?"

"Him? Why, he's my footman—he's in livery"

"Well, you get him out of livery just as quick as you can—that's all"

Saturday, when I was walking with a young lady in Broadway, he touched me on the shoulder and said: "How's this?" He was dressed like a Tartar chief, and was shouldering a vast vermilion sign around.

I hunted everywhere for the fellow this morning, and found him at last in full police uniform, lugging young women across Broadway, at the junction of Vesey street. I was speechless, but he chirped out in his cheerful way:

"Oh, no; this ain't no good thing, I don't reckon on!" and seized a young girl and charged through the confusion of vehicles with her, ordering the drivers to stand still, and that checking the tide of three miles of commerce, and wasting hundreds of dollars of mercantile time—for you know when one cart stops there, the endless procession must wait till it moves again. I have got to kill this fellow—I foresee that.

A French officer, in the course of the war, being a prisoner at Portsmouth, was permitted to walk about the town on his parole, and accordingly went one Sunday morning to church, where he saw the mayor's daughters, two very handsome girls. "Begar!" said Monsieur, when he came home, "two very fin' young ladie yere at church dis morning." "Who were they?" said the landlady. "Begar, I have forgot de names, but vat be dat ting vat nibble de grass?" "Oh," said the lady, "a cow." "No, no," eagerly interrupted the Frenchman. "A sheep, perhaps?" said she "No." "A bull?" "No." "For heps, then, you mean a horse?" "No, no, not de horse, but, begar, what be de horse's wife's name?" "A mare," answered the landlady "Oui! de mare's two daughters were at church dis morning—two very pretty young ladie Begar, de make de water dome in my mout"

FASHIONABLE RECIPE.—A young lady has very kindly furnished the Detroit Tribune with a recipe, which she has tried and knows to be effective, that will keep feet warm, and we give it, without, however, recommending its general use. She says:

I am troubled with cold feet, but I manage to keep warm by lying in bed every morning until my brother has built a rousing fire and prepared breakfast I then get up, place my feet on the front of the stove eat my morning meal, read the news, and after warming some flannels, and wrapping them about my "poor feet," return to bed, where I remain until nearly noon. I repeat this this every twenty-four hours and find it very comfortable. I think I shall survive.

The Frankfort, Ky, Commonwealth, states that "if any candid Democrat, with an average quantum of brains, will examine page 276 of the Auditor's report for 1867; he will have the appalling abolition fact driven in upon his understanding, that Kentucky is $32,638,791 richer without the negro than with him.
